On-site. Since I took this, I added some curtains, but I can't find where I put my "curtains" sets (City Classics and some other vendors.) I could do store displays, too.

Once I get a chance to get back downstairs, I'll work on the structure to the left of this one.

Fine job on the building, Dave. Looks very much at home with the tower on the corner like that.

Some progress today on the building in the middle. Trim painting, not complete. The walls are just leaning together.

I have a recessed doorway for that structure, but I need to finish the trim painting before I assemble that. I might add a bit more cornice to raise the height of the side wall.

Dave, the trim painting is looking good. A cornice on the side wall might look good and complete the flow of the roof line. Have fun, mike

Buffalo Canyon Mining Company structures and Layout are my primary projects. The current build is Nowlin's Gas and Service Station.

Merchant's Row is a good source of background buildings. Your bash is looking good, Dave. The white paint gives a nice contrast.

Closer to done... The recessed door is in place, along with the cornice on the side. I still have some more trim painting to do, then final assembly. (Right wall is just leaning in place.)

Overall, I'm happy with how this is coming along.

Looking at the photo, I think I'm going to change the colors on the cornice. I'd like it to be a little less obvious. I'll replace the light blue with a darker grey.
